Oran Safety Glass (OSG) Emporia production facility expansion

Oran Safety Glass (OSG) has operated in Emporia, Virginia, production facility since 2007, where it produces Transparent Armor and protective glass innovative products for Military and Civilian armored vehicles. The company develops innovative technology for transportation applications and specializing in unique and tech-forward glass installations for trains, the heart and soul of America's transportation division.

The facility is in the final expansion process to a whopping 160,000 sq./ft., doubling its original footprint.

The $4.45 million investment which includes among others, new machinery, clean rooms, storage and working areas will allow the company better efficiency in production capabilities, significantly higher capacities and outputs. OSG will also increase the facility workforce to accommodate additional projects and capacities.

All of the above will enable OSG to manufacture and meet all its customer's demand in Emporia, Virginia, using the latest, most advanced and high-quality production methods, while increasing redundancy at every step along the production line.

As part of the expansion and thanks to the additional near 80,000 sq/ft to be added to the Emporia facility, OSG will be constructing new, large, innovative and clean rooms, which will be outfitted with state-of-the-art, industry-relevant technology. In addition, a new tempering oven, a new bending oven and machinery for cutting, grinding, polishing and framing will be installed, enabling new and additional products be produced.

The expansion is well under way. Current estimations expect it to be completed by late 2018.
